

Platanos College News

Wednesday 9th October 2013

Army Cadets at Platanos College

We are pleased to announce that Platanos College has successfully established an Army Cadets partnership with St. Dunstan's College this year. The cadet forces aim to give young people the chance to do some exciting and challenging activities with others of their own age. All activities are well supervised by responsible and well trained adults who have all undergone an approved selection process.

On Tuesday 8th October 2013, our Chair of Governors, Mr Alabi, and the Headteacher of St Dunstan's College officially signed the partnership agreement.

Signing of the partnership agreement

Cadets are taught how to work together as groups within the community, encouraging them to become responsible young adults. They participate in outdoor activities including parades and training days and learn valuable personal skills which are recognised by future employers. They will also have the opportunity to attend several residential trips.

The Army Cadets are an important addition to school life. They meet and train every Monday, from 4pm to 5pm, at St. Dunstan's College, Catford.

Platanos College pupils in the Combined Cadet Force (CCF)

Attitude Determines Altitude